INSTRUCTIONS FOR LEARNING:

This activity is delivered as a live, non-enduring interprofessional educational conference featuring two expert-led lectures focused on healthcare professionals' well-being, workplace safety, and mental health awareness. Content is presented through live educational sessions addressing cannabis use among healthcare professionals and perfectionism in clinical practice, with practical discussion of professional judgment, burnout, and workforce wellness. The live format supports interdisciplinary learning, real-time discussion, and shared reflection across healthcare professions. To claim credit, learners are required to participate in the conference and complete a post-activity survey evaluation. Throughout the activity, learners will strengthen their understanding of professional health risks, behavioural factors that affect clinical performance, and practical strategies that support safer, healthier healthcare practice environments.

STATEMENT OF NEED:

This education is needed due to evolving legal, social, and clinical attitudes toward cannabis use and the uncertainty this creates for healthcare professionals working in safety-sensitive environments. Misunderstandings about cannabis impairment, workplace expectations, recreational versus therapeutic use, and professional responsibilities may place both clinicians and patients at risk. Healthcare professionals need evidence-based education to better understand cannabis-related risks, workplace implications, and how substance use may affect professional judgment, patient safety, and clinical performance. This activity addresses these knowledge gaps by promoting informed awareness and safer professional decision-making.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

After participating in this activity, learners will be able to:

1. Describe current trends and clinical considerations related to cannabis use among healthcare professionals.
2. Evaluate the potential impact of cannabis use on professional judgment, workplace safety, and patient care.
3. Differentiate between therapeutic, recreational, and impairment-related considerations relevant to clinical practice.
4. Apply evidence-informed professional decision-making related to cannabis use in healthcare settings.

TARGET AUDIENCE:

This activity is suitable for Physicians, Nurses, Pharmacists, Physician Assistants, Social Workers, Psychologists, Dietitians, Dentists, Athletic Trainers, and other healthcare professionals.

It is specifically designed as an interprofessional educational activity for licensed healthcare professionals across disciplines, with particular relevance to clinicians working in safety-sensitive practice environments and professionals interested in clinician well-being, impairment awareness, and workforce mental health.
